How to Verify a Wakaga Economic Development Partner

Read the directory, understand current standing, and confirm the scope of a claimed authorization.

01 / VERIFY THE RECORD

Start with the official public directory

Use the EDP area reached through partners.wakagagroup.com and open the credential directory. Match the person or organization you are dealing with to the registered EDP record. If search is available, use the exact name or Partner ID; otherwise locate the record directly.

| Check            | What to compare                                                                                                                                                          |
|------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Registered name  | Match the legal organization or individual. Similar trade names, affiliated companies, and individual representatives should not be assumed to hold the same credential. |
| Partner ID       | Compare the identifier on the directory, certificate, and correspondence. A copied ID alone does not authenticate the person using it.                                   |
| Location         | Use the recorded state, region, or country as a supporting identity check.                                                                                               |
| Current standing | Read the written status. Do not infer standing from badge color, a photograph, or an email domain.                                                                       |
| Dates            | Compare the approval and expiration dates displayed for the credential. Check current standing even when the expiration date is in the future.                           |
| Certificate      | Where a certificate is linked, open the official copy and compare its name, ID, and validity dates with the record.                                                      |

A directory record verifies program standing. It does not by itself authorize a specific contract, commercial commitment, purchase, financing arrangement, or payment instruction.

The expanded row layout and certificate links are part of the October 2026 directory update. If a field or certificate is not yet displayed, request confirmation from Wakaga instead of assuming the missing information.

02 / STATUS & BADGES

Separate standing from appearance

| Status                       | Meaning for a public verification                                                                                                                                     |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| GREEN - GOOD STANDING | Wakaga identifies the participant as currently in good standing. The participant still has only the scope and authority provided by applicable written authorization. |
| AMBER - EXPIRED       | The recorded authorization period has ended. Do not treat an old credential or certificate as proof of current standing. Request confirmation of any renewal.         |
| RED - SUSPENDED       | Wakaga has suspended the participant's standing or authorization. Confirm applicable restrictions and project instructions directly with Wakaga.                      |

Gold and Platinum

Gold and Platinum are visual credential styles. Neither style creates a higher level of contractual authority, different program privileges, a guaranteed commercial benefit, or a different legal relationship. Always read the current standing separately.

Certificate dates and current status

A sealed PDF is a dated record of the credential issued to the named participant. Its expiration date should match the corresponding website record. Standing can change before that date, so a saved or printed certificate must be checked against current information.

Where the certificate and directory disagree, do not choose the more favorable version. Ask Wakaga to resolve the discrepancy before relying on the claimed status. Do not infer misconduct solely from an expired record, missing listing, or unavailable certificate.

The seal and badge are identification elements. They do not turn the document into a project authorization or guarantee the participant's performance.

03 / AUTHORITY CHECK

Confirm the actual proposed activity

Questions for a counterparty

- Which exact organization and person are involved?
- What project or transaction is being discussed?
- What action does the EDP claim authority to take?
- Which written authorization covers that action, and is it current?
- Who at Wakaga can independently confirm the scope and any limitations?

When to contact Wakaga directly

Contact Wakaga if no matching record is found, the identifier differs, the status is unclear, a document appears altered, or the claimed authority exceeds routine introductions and coordination. Use contact information obtained from the official website, not only the contact details supplied in the disputed message.

Requests to redirect payments, accept banking changes, sign commitments, or rely on urgent financing promises require independent confirmation through the proper Wakaga channel. A legitimate email address or good-standing badge does not eliminate that need.

Preserve a useful verification record

Record the date checked, registered name, Partner ID, displayed standing, certificate dates where available, and the Wakaga contact who confirmed any project-specific authority. A screenshot documents what you saw; it does not freeze status or extend authorization.
